Product Description

Whether as a learning globe, a holiday planner or an attractive eye-catcher for the desk: the table globes from emform are impressive in many ways. The Juri, Saturn and Kosmos globes, for example, offer two axes so that you can easily explore every corner of the world. And with the Terra Light illuminated globe, you can view the earth in detail even in the dark. All labelling is in English. As early as the fourth century B.C., the Greek philosopher PLATON was already working on the ideal shape of the earth. The new emform globe by young designer Louise Onken is just as perfectly shaped. The 280 x 250 millimetre globe is attached to a solid oak base measuring 180 x 180 x 40 mm using a magnet, allowing it to be rotated and easily removed. There are different versions to choose from depending on your requirements.
